Jailbreak Accomplice Dies At Hospital

The twenty-year old accomplice in a jail break here Apr. 23 died Tuesday afternoon of bullet wounds, suffered when he was trapped shortly after the escape.

Truman Engle was pronounced dead at approximately 3:30 p.m., Tuesday, after hovering at death's door for the previous 13 days.

Engle was shot by law enforcement officers within two hours after the jailbreak as he fled across the L. & N. Railroad's swinging bridge on N. Main Street. He was attempting to escape into the Yard section of Hazard when shot through the kidney.

Engle and a friend, James McIntosh, 19, picked up three or four of the seven escapees just one block east of the jail.

Their car crashed into two parked cars on East Main Street as they fled north on Ky. 15. The escapes scattered in all directions while Engle and McIntosh headed for the bridge. Caught up with at the bridge, city police reported at the time that Engle opened fire on officers. In the exchange that followed, the two were shot; McIntosh hit in the foot, escaped but turned himself into county authorities an hour after the shooting.

The 5 of the seven who escaped the county jail by cutting their way through the ceiling are still at large.

Funeral arrangements for Engle are incomplete, pending the arrival of his sister, Mrs. Pauline, of Illinois.

He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Engle, one other sister, Mrs. Amydean Howard, of Combs; two brothers, Thurman and Burton Engle, both of Combs.

Burial will be in the Riverside Cemetery with Engle Funeral Home in charge.

Combs Cleared: State Orders Banks To Pay

Former Perry County Judge J. H. Banks was ordered Tuesday to reimburse the State for State pipe used on his farm to bridge a culvert.

Banks and former Perry County Highway Superintendent Luther Combs tried in Franklin Circuit Court. The case against Combs was dismissed by Circuit Court Judge J. B. Ardrey because Combs "was acting under orders."

Banks was ordered to pay the State $1,202 for the pipe or return it to the State. Banks' attorney, M. B. "Tug" Fields, said today no decision has been made yet on whether to appeal the case.

The suit, filed in January, sought to collect $1,262 from Banks and Combs for diverting 96 feet of reinforced concrete pipe from a State road project to the Banks' farm.

The suit charged that the pipe was used with the "consent and connivance of Combs" Combs was defended by H. B. Noble.

In the original complaint, it was noted that the culvert material was to have been used on the Coolidge Fork road, but that the pipe was used to bridge a gulley on the Banks' farm near the site of the road project.

Teenage Rodeo Planned Sunday

Perry County's top nine teen age drivers will compete here Sunday in the Jaycee-sponsored "Teenage-Rodeo," a test of driving skills to be held at the By Pass Parking lot at 1 p.m.

Run-offs were held last week at three county schools.

Representing Dilce Combs will be Cooley Colwell, Michael Bruce Stewart and O. V. Thompson; M. C. Napier, Donnie Couch, Roger Noble and Thomas Ballew; and Hazard High School James Yonts, Henry W. Jr. and Mike Lee.

The local winner in Sunday's competition will compete in the State Teenage Rodeo to be held in Mayfield, May 24.

Rodeo chairman this year is William Biggs.

Flood Threat Passes For Perry

Any threat of a flood here passed yesterday afternoon when the North Fork of the Kentucky River crested at 19 feet, one foot below Hazard's flood stage of 20 feet.

The Hazard City Water Plant reported today the crest was reached at 4:30 p.m. suited in this being another Wednesday; by 5 p.m., the water had started to fall and has been falling continuously ever since.

Water started rising here late Monday afternoon, causing at least a flood of rumors that the water would be coming over the banks.

Still closed are Ky. 421 into Harlan by a slide, and Ky. 23 into Prestonsburg and Allendale main roads in Pike and Johnson County are open.

For the local State Police Post, the flood threat resulted in a hectic three day.

The same night, a report from Lothair had the water with two feet of Ky. 15. A check by Kentucky State Police revealed the water had risen three feet in three hours. This report, like many others, proved to be false.

For the local State Police Post, the flood threat resulted in a hectic three day.

Phone calls asking about flood conditions and the water level started at 5 p.m., Monday afternoon and continued without let-up until late last night. Most inquiries now, State Police reported this morning, are about road conditions in adjoining counties.

Deer Forest To Remain Protected

Perry and Breathitt county sportsmen pleaded here Tuesday night for Robinson Forest to remain a "posted" game preserve. And got what they wanted.

At the close of a one-hour meeting of sportsmen and State officials at city hall, sportsmen were left with the understanding that Robinson Forest will remain "posted" in the interest of hunters.

Sportsmen told Don Stroud and Freden Hardy, Department of Conservation, that to take down the posters would mean the end of the deer population in the forest. Sportsmen noted they feared random killing of deer.

Stroud noted that while the final decision was up to the Fish and Game Commission, he felt the commission would go along with the sportsmen.

Members instructed Rose Davis, 7th District Commissioner, to go on record as favoring the posted reserve.

Engineers Ask Bids For Dam And Spillway

Sealed bids for the spillway and dam construction on the Buckhorn Reservoir are now being received by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Announcement was made this morning by Col. Edward D. Comm, district engineer, Louisville.

According to Col. Comm's invitation to bid, work must be completed with 700 days after awarding the contract. The "tentative date" of June 5 has been set to open bids.

The following work is outlined in the invitation:

"Construction of earth and random rock fill dam; grouted foundation; spillway lined with chain-link mesh; gated spillway structure; guard fence; service bridge; service stairs; water lines; temporary road; access road and parking area, including grading, draining, crushed stone and bituminous surface courses; fertilizing and seeding."

Plans and specifications for the work will be available about May 6 and may be obtained from the U.S. Army Engineer District, Louisville.

They will also be on display in the U.S. Army Engineer District Office in Pittsburgh, Pa., Huntington, W. Va., Nashville, Tenn., Chicago, Ill., Cincinnati, Ohio, and Louisville.

Tryouts will be held from 3:30 to 6:00 o'clock.

All boys in Perry County who are 13 through 15 years are eligible. Boys must be 13 on or before Sept. 1, and not become 16 before Sept. 1.

Boys who are already playing Babe Ruth ball are not required to tryout, Landon said.

Landon urged all eligible youth to tryout for the teams.

City Abolishes Curfew Ordinance

Hazard's curfew ordinance was written off the books Monday night in a split vote moments after City Manager Hobert Wooten asked for instruction from the Board of Commissioners on how to deal with the ordinance.

The vote, 2-1, came after an amendment by Commissioner George Feltner was beaten. The amendment would have "re-enacted" the ordinance and required that the fire whistle be blown at ten minutes before the 9 p.m. curfew.

The ordinance, passed May 29, 1943, but only superficially enforced in recent years, was abolished on votes cast by Mayor Douglas Combs and Commissioner Calloway Combs.

The Board also approved the City fathers gave first reading to a $220,912.73 budget for a 30-day basis. City Manager Wooten said $6,000 will be used to pay the $6,000 outstanding debt on the By-Pass, and $500 for street paving.

Also approved was a personal property tax of 75 cents per $100 real and personal property evaluation, the same as last year. Sixty-nine cents of the tax will go into the general fund; one cent into the city John Ferrer investment fund; and 5 cents to the Bobby Davis Memorial Library.

"Common Sense Afloat" Asked Of Anglers

men to "use common sense. Statisticians estimate 35 persons will die in boating accidents."

Davis, looking to the biggest accidents in Kentucky during the vacationing and fishing year in 1958 season. Hoping to cut that history, said more people will estimate, Davis issued these be taking to the waterways of eight rules for staying alive Kentucky this year than ever on Kentucky waters this summer. "There will be more men: people, and we're afraid, more (1) Know your boat—every

(3) Watch the weather—head for shore before a storm breaks. If caught out, seat passengers on the floor. (4) Keep low—and step in the center when boarding or changing seats. (5) Head into waves—if waves are high, head your boat at an angle towards the waves at a slow speed. (6) Use the right motor—too much power can damage your boat, may even swamp it. Look for OBC recommended horsepower plate. (7) Don't overload—seats do not indicate capacity. Two or three adults may be a full load under many conditions. (8) Avoid sharp turns—fast, sharp turns are hard on equipment and sometimes people. Take it easy.

COUNTY AGENTS' MEMOS

Get Strawberry Crates and Cups Now; Sheep Meeting Held in Morehead

Paul Keen, County Agricultural Extension Agent

John Caudill, Associate County Agent

Claude Patterson, Manager of Upper Kentucky River strawberry association, asked us to announce that all growers wishing to purchase cups and crates from association should come to his place on Troublesome Creek this Saturday, May 10. Patterson lives about three miles below Homeplace and will have road signs and crates on left of road so his place will be easily located.

All strawberry producers wishing to secure cups and crates through association should purchase all crates needed Saturday, orders will be for cash only.

Dusting Strawberries

Strawberries should be dusted while in full bloom. The material to use is 5% DDT and 5% Chlorine dust.

After berries set on, strawberries should be dusted with Captone dust.

Rains are making any spray program extremely difficult. If there is a period of 24-hours for spray or dust to dry, it would be worthwhile.

Sheep for Eastern Kentucky
We really enjoyed the sheep meeting and lamb barbecue in Morehead last Monday. Victor

All agreed that sheep are most profitable livestock enterprise for most Eastern Kentucky farmers. Sheep numbers can be very profitably increased if properly managed. Some of the main points brought out that are important to success are:

1. Fencing—four or five strands of barbwire or web-wire are needed for sheep.
2. Pasture—good pasture consisting of grasses and legumes. Six sheep require same pasture as one cow.
3. Good quality legume hay is essential.
4. Secure top quality ewes. Best ewes are obtained from West since they are practically free of parasites and because they produce top quality lambs. Most sheepmen get yearling ewes for around $25.00.
5. All used either Southdown or Hampshire rams.
6. Drenching two or preferably three times a year for control of parasites is essential for success.

Most of the growers realize an income of about $25.00 per year. Very little housing is needed for sheep. We will advise any farmer wishing to get in sheep business to first of all get fences in order, then get some good pastures seeded and make arrangements for good quality legume hay. We believe that any farmer starting should get at least one ram flock, one ram flock of at least 15 to 20 ewes.

The substation at Quicksand recently started a flock of sheep. Visitors are welcome to see the flock and other projects being carried out.

Highlights Of The Mining Convention

Mechanized Mining Introduced

"As mechanized mining was introduced and extended it became evident that to develop the full potential of new and improved equipment it was essential that the methods of the industrial engineer be adopted and that the section foreman, as the key man, needed additional and somewhat specialized training to assure satisfactory results," John E. Kaites told those attending a session of the 1958 American Mining Congress Coal Convention being held here.

Kaites, who is an industrial engineer with Berwind-White Coal Mining Co., Windber, Pa., said that his company for many years has conducted schools to prepare employees for examinations leading to certification by the State as to competency for positions as mine foremen, assistant foremen and firebosses.

He said in many cases exceptional students had additional training at company expense at recognized mining schools in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Under the company program, every official at the mine, including mine foremen and superintendents, is required to take the training which is altered to meet the individual's needs. The program covers a minimum of two to four weeks and, according to Kaites, "better cost control and cost reduction can be attained through industrial engineering and maintenance standards. And, as all new products, they have to be sold, put into practice and followed through."

Mechanization

The trend toward mechanization of coal mines had been brought about mainly as a result of economic conditions, Mack H. Shumate, assistant general manager, Truxx-Tract Coal Co., Kay Ford, W. Va.

Dawhore's

told those attending a haulage session of the 1958 American Mining Congress Coal Convention being held here.

Speaking on conveyor belt and mine car haulage, Shumate said the problem of comparing all-belt haulage with a combination of belts and mine cars is difficult because operating conditions of a particular mine would dictate the successful application of haulage systems. Pointing out that mine operators hesitate to replace all rails, mine cars and locomotives in an individual operation, especially at a mine which has been operating for 10 to 20 years, Shumate said that possibly the best approach to this type of problem is a combination of belt conveyor and mine cars.

Shumate said his company's experience in West Virginia has shown that combination belt and mine haulage facilitates the extension of haulage during rapid development and extraction behind high capacity mining equipment. Using a West Virginia mine as an example, Shumate said the use of conveyor belts resulted in a large reduction of mine haulage costs. He said in 1952 the haulage costs were 31 cents per ton for labor and supplies, and since the installation of conveyor belts there had been a steady decrease to 20 cents per ton early this year. This is a savings of one third in haulage costs amounting to $5.90 per eight-hour day as well as an additional $80 for vacation pay and an additional 10 cents per ton for the mine workers welfare fund, according to Shumate.

Alternating Current Safer

The use of alternating current systems in coal mines is safer, more economical and more reliable than the use of direct current, according to C. R. Huffman, staff electrical consultant for the Donegan Coal & Coke Co. of Richwood, W. Va. Huffman made the statement today at an underground power session of the American Mining Congress 1958 Coal Convention being held here.

Speaking on the factors in evaluating and selecting alternating current systems for underground coal mines, Huffman said that today one can get alternating current motors on practically any kind of mining equipment with the exception of haulage locomotives and that any coal company planning on opening up a new mine or expanding operations where new equipment will be required is overlooking an opportunity if it does not investigate the advantage of the use of alternating current.

Continuous Miner

The steady growth of mechanized coal mining in the United States as illustrated for coal miners today in a speech given at a session of the American Mining Congress 1958 Coal Convention being held here. R. L. Anderson, coal industry analyst for the U. S. Bureau of Mines, emphasized that the use of recently developed continuous mining equipment has resulted in another increase in production per man

The continuous miner is a power-driven machine which literally "claws" the coal out of the seam and, according to Anderson, there were 510 such machines in operation in the bituminous coal mines in 1958 with 168,000 tons being added in 1957. He said that in 24 mines checked in 1956, which employed only continuous mining, the average output per man day was 14,080 tons as compared with 11,170 tons per man day for conventional mining. Total production of bituminous coal and lignite in 1958 was 501,000,000 tons, and the average productivity for all mines was 10,280 tons per man day.

Anderson said that production of coal by continuous mining has been increasing steadily in recent years while conventional mining by scrapers and belt conveyors and mobile loading into mine cars has been decreasing. He pointed out that in 1952, when records of continuous mining were first kept, production by this method totaled 8 million tons of bituminous coal, whereas in 1957 this had increased to 50 million tons.

Cost of Coal

"Utility and industrial companies are looking more and more closely into the overall cost of coal in terms of cost per pound of steam generated rather than in cost per ton delivered to the plant. The coal industry therefore, should recognize that upgrading coals must be looked at more and more intensively," R. H. Wolin, assistant chief engineer, Combustion Engineering Co., Inc., New York, told those attending a coal-preparation session of the American Mining Congress 1958 Coal convention being held here.

Speaking on the factors in evaluating and selecting alternating current systems for underground coal mines, Huffman said that today one can get alternating current motors on practically any kind of mining equipment with the exception of haulage locomotives and that any coal company planning on opening up a new mine or expanding operations where

Speaking on future demand of the electric utility industry for high-quality coal, Wolin said that large, expensive and efficient steam generating units are only as good as their availability, that their availability and overall efficiency are greatly affected by operating and maintenance costs, and that the quality of the fuels burned has a great influence on these items.

He said every coal producer has some measure of control over the quality of his product in that he can eliminate part of the ash, the sulphur and the alkalies in it.

"For best and most efficient steam generation, the operators of any large unit should know what coals are being burned all the time. Different coals require different amounts of air—require different burner and damper settings—more or less frequent use of foot blowers, etc., and coals which for one reason or another do not run uniform in a plant, lead to poor operations," Wolin said.

He said that in 24 mines checked in 1956, which employed only continuous mining, the average output per man day was 14,080 tons as compared with 11,170 tons per man day for conventional mining. Total production of bituminous coal and lignite in 1958 was 501,000,000 tons, and the average productivity for all mines was 10,280 tons per man day.

Pointing out that the utility companies are becoming more cost-conscious in regard to coal, Wolin said a study by a mid-western utility indicated that there is as much as 25 cents per ton difference between operating cost of an average coal and the cost of one of their lowest grade coals, which represents 5 percent of the price of the coal. He said a 24 hours of operation.

coal which is a few cents a ton cheaper delivered at the plant may prove many cents a ton more expensive when a strict record of operating and maintenance costs are kept.

Preventive Maintenance

Preventive maintenance of coal-mining equipment—a program aimed at holding costly breakdowns and resulting interrupted production to a minimum—as practiced by a West Virginia company was described today to delegates attending the 1958 Coal Convention of the American Mining Congress here.

From railroad tipple to mine storage bins, the company has one haul of 7½ miles, then a continuation of the same haul road to a distance of 10½ miles. A difference in elevation of 700 feet must be overcome to reach the mines. Copland said this is accomplished by climbing upgrade at from 6 to 8 percent a distance of 2½ miles, after which the road is almost level to the mines.

There is considerable snow and ice during winter months, he said, but this has been overcome by use of abrasives on the roads and chains on the haulers.

by Ben Fitzpatrick

Hazard High School, after a 4-year drought, has apparently come up with a good baseball team.

The Canines, in winning two of three contests, have exhibited a good batting punch, a fine defensive team, and boast one of the State's best prep pitchers, Tom Johnson.

Irony Noted In "Flood Scare" and Announcement

There is a twist of irony in Tuesday morning's announcement naming Hazard as the headquarters for the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission and the "flood scare" which whipped through this valley the same day.

It might be even re-said that the event was appropriate to the announcement. Last year's flood was rapidly becoming a thing of the past in the minds of too many; the "It can't happen again here" attitude was all too apparent among our populace.

The Bulldog batsmen have compiled a .324 team mark through their 3 games and are led by Henry Baldwin, .451, Sizemore, .400 and Johnson, .364.

Revival Planned At Combs Church

A revival with the Rev. Brack Feltner and Warman Neice conducting will begin May 11th at the Combs Bend Regular Baptist Church, Ky. 80, near the Miners' Memorial Hospital.

The revival will be held each night through May 18th.

It will take a total attack on all problems to solve them; an attack lead by men of ability and talent with the support of the entire populace. There can be little room for the publicity seekers who have as their only concern their personal enrichment, there is a place, however, for men, rich and poor, educated and uneducated, who have a sincere belief in the future of Eastern Kentucky.

Nor is there room for such thinking as pretends that the Eastern Kentucky Planning Commission and its staff can do the job alone. Unfortunately, it is all too obvious that this type of thinking exists.

The commission benefits from having as its members men of considerable talent, education and ability. They are men who have lived and worked in Eastern Kentucky and know the problems of the region. Long before the commission was established last year, all of them, each in his own way, were giving of their experience, intelligence and personal fortunes to further the progress of this region.

The commission can only be successful if it wins the support of the people, and only the future can measure the success of this pre-requisite. In its new executive director, Mr. John Whisman, it has a man whose talents of organization and leadership have already been demonstrated as the past president of the Kentucky Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Our problems are complex, but they are not above solution.

P.C.D.A., Chamber of Commerce, H.B.B.A.

Call It What You Like—But Lets Have One

Several years ago, there was born in Hazard an organization which had as its purpose an overall approach to the problems of Perry County. That organization was popularly known as the Perry County Development Association.

It came into being as adjutant to the Hazard Chamber of Commerce and for a while the two worked arm in arm with commendable and obvious results.

A short time later, the Hazard Better Businessmen's Association was organized to fill an apparent void in the thinking, planning and direction of the Chamber of Commerce and the Perry County Development Association.

Eventually the Chamber of Commerce became a paper organization, existing here virtually in name only. The P.C.D.A., a worthwhile venture, tried for new life a year ago, held a couple of meetings and now has apparently joined the ranks of the Chamber of Commerce. The H.B.B.A. is now holding a membership drive; the future of this organization may well be decided in the next few weeks.

All this serves to remind us of the parable of the father, his three sons and the sticks. You know the story. The lesson: "In unity there is strength."

We are NOT unified here!

If there is a void in the future plans of Hazard, it is in the attitude of the community's professional and business men towards an organization devoted to the future well being of this community. The P.C.D.A. is a good idea; the Chamber of Commerce is a good idea; the Hazard Businessmen's Association is a good idea. But what good is any idea without support.

There is of course one other obvious difficulty—the efforts of the membership is spread to thin—there is no unity of effort. And there can be none because there is no logical reason for having three organizations where only one is needed.

We would ask of each organization and their leaders:

Is it impossible for the business and professional men of Hazard, Lothair and Walkertown to come together under one banner—that banner being the future progress of Perry County?

Call it what you like—P.C.D.A., Chamber of Commerce, or H.B.B.A. But let it be one organization with the support of the entire business and professional community. Give it the flexibility to represent conflicting opinions and courses of action. Let it have a development committee, a trade committee, a promotion committee, or any other of the committees associated with a progressive organization along the lines of a Chamber of Commerce.

But most of all—let it be a meeting ground where ideas and programs for the good of all Perry Countians can be carried to completion.

our county clean and attractive so that it will merit compliments instead of criticism. Sow a lawn, plant shrubs and trees. Brighten your home with flowers. Help to make our county beautiful. Above all, do not spoil the highways and pollute our streams with refuse. Keep Perry County green and clean.

—Mrs. D. B. Franklin.

Keep Perry County Green and Clean

To the Editor:

The Mountain Laurel Region of the Garden Club of Kentucky, Inc., held the 12th annual session at Hazard, April 12. The guest speaker was Mr. Laban Jackson, state commissioner of conservation. His topic was "Conservation in Southeastern Kentucky." Every citizen of Perry County should have heard him. His speech began with the statement that God's first command to man was that he "dress and keep" the Garden. This theme was carried out in its application to our present stewardship of our God-given natural resources. Mr. Jackson deplored the wasteful manner in which our forests have been depleted.

He spoke of the natural beauty of our mountains, streams, native trees and plants, and said no other section of the United States had more to offer the tourist for scenic loveliness. Unfortunately, however, so much of this beauty is marred by unsightly dumps of tin cans, garbage, and trash of all sorts. Travelers through our region judge us by our "public housekeeping." They do not see inside our homes, but they do see our roadsides marred by filthy refuse.

Some of our roads have been made into a public dumping ground, and what should be beautiful drives are often times a series of dump piles. We do not know who the offenders are, but make this earnest appeal: stop roadside dumping. If you have no other means of disposal, dig a garbage pit.

Our garden clubs join wholeheartedly with other civic clubs in urging all citizens to clean up our county. Let's work together to keep

Five Escapees Still At Large

According to Perry County Jailor Charlie Maggard, five of the seven escapees who fled from the jail on April 23rd are still at large. One of these was Clell Miller, who was captured by Floyd County officials and returned home early last week. Haskel Nease returned and gave himself up the day following the break. Others still at large are Eugene Spencer, John Wesley Combs, Douglas Gilbert, Marcus Stacy, and Donald Stacy.

Jailor Maggard asks that anyone knowing of the whereabouts of any of the above who are still at large, to contact the Perry County Sheriff, the Jailor, or any of the State Highway Police.

"The Second Chapter Of Jude"

By A. C. Grider

When a man tries to establish his contention without any scriptures, we usually say he got his proof from the second chapter of Jude. The Book of Jude has only ONE chapter. Our Baptist friend took his scriptures last week from the "second chapter of Jude." He made no quotation at all from the Bible. Maybe it is better that way, since he misapprehends every verse he quotes anyway. But even his "assertions" are not in harmony with the Bible.

He "asserted" that "Baptism is a symbol of salvation." There is not an ounce of evidence in the Bible that such is so. It is merely an assertion. Saul was NOT told to arise and be baptized to "symbolize" that he was already saved. He was told to arise and be baptized and WASH away his sins. Acts 22:16. Jesus didn't say he that believeth and is baptized shall "symbolize" that he is already saved. He said he that believeth and is baptized SHALL be saved. Mark 16:16. Peter didn't say repent and be baptized to "symbolize" that your sins are already remitted. He said repent and be baptized FOR the remission of sins. Acts 2:38. No, my dear friends, the Bible DOESN'T say baptism is a symbol of salvation. The Baptist Preacher said that, but he cannot prove it.

But again, our friend "asserted" that "Good works are a mark of salvation." There is not an ounce of evidence in the Bible that such is so. It is merely an assertion. Phil. 2:12 records the fact that the people were told to work out their salvation. They were NOT told to work as a mark that they are already saved. One is not accepted with Christ and then works as a "mark of it." But he works that he may be accepted. Acts 10:34-35. One is not blessed and then works as a "mark of the blessing." But he does the work that he may be blessed. Read it in James 1:25. No, my dear friends, the Bible DOESN'T say works are a mark of salvation. The Baptist Preacher said that, but he cannot prove it. Indeed, his proof, comes from "the second chapter of Jude."

Let our friend read or cite us a passage to read that even SOUNDS LIKE IT MIGHT teach that baptism is a symbol of salvation. Until he does, we can be sure that he KNOWS he cannot read or cite us to a passage that says works is a mark of salvation. Until he does, we can be sure he KNOWS he cannot read or cite us to such a passage. Friends, please believe only what you can read in the Bible about baptism. Attend services Sunday at the Lothair Church of Christ. May God bless you is my prayer.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mullins of Stroh, Ind., April 21. She weighed 9 lbs. and 1 oz. and was named Maryann. Jack is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Mullins of Hindman, who lives here in Stroh during the work week.

Banquet Given

A Stanley Party was given at Mrs. Monette Ison's home Thursday evening by Mrs. Nettie Johnson. Those in attendance were Mrs. Jean Chapman, Mrs. Christine Loudy, Mrs. Margaret Shepherd, Mrs. Sarah Ison, Mrs. Lena Chatt, Mrs. Kirby Hibbard, Mrs. Mary Asher, Mrs. Opal Asher, Mrs. Gola Mooney, Mrs. Eunice Cress, Mrs. Vera ed in this year's banquet. Those who attended were the following: Janice Bush, Lily Fern Bush, Joyce Ann Campbell, Caroline Chadwick, Elaine White, Wanda Sue Cornett, Betty Lewis, Geneva Couch, Hazel Cornett, Joanne Asher, Goldie Chapman, Patsy Williams, Hazel Halcomb, Lois Griffith and Yula Griffith. Many thanks to the mothers who furnished part of the food for the meal! Mrs. Charlie Mooney and Mrs. William Patterson served. Mrs. Cletis Leverett, preacher's wife from Cornettsville, was the speaker. A fine evening was enjoyed by all.

Coming from town Friday evening we saw where Mr. Hobart Pigman had gone off the road and nearly landed into the river. He was not seriously injured.

Shade Dixon says, "Whoever coined the phrase, 'baby sitting,' had misnamed it," because when he took care of his grand daughter, Anita Carol, that it was "baby running".

Mrs. Allison Miniard was not able to attend church Sunday morning, which in her case is a rare thing. We are sorry she is sick.

The Baccalaureate Sermon for the Leatherwood High School at 2:00 p. m., Sunday was delivered by Rev. Thompson, pastor of the Leatherwood Baptist Church.

Tom White is now able to be up moving around but is still under the doctor's care. Hope soon he will be able to go back to work.
